Katie Dilse is truly a remarkable and engaging speaker that I most certainly would recommend for any event. She immediately captivates her audience and becomes involved with them making you a part of her message which will leave you feeling better about yourself and those around you. She will deliver her messages with great humor and emotion so well, that she will have you laughing and crying as you can relate personally to what she's saying to you. It doesn't matter if the message she is relaying is for women, men or couples she will open your eyes to things we take for granted and teach us to be better spouses, friends and business owners.

Katie has always been a favorite of the U.S. Custom Harvesters, Inc. as we all look forward with great anticipation as conventions draw near to attend her speaking engagements and those that miss them are honestly disappointed.

Having grown up in rural North Dakota and currently residing with her "boys" in rural Scranton, North Dakota, she has great life experiences to share which all have great insight into our daily lives. She also exhibits all the great characteristics in a person and speaker which will make you wanting her to come back and speak at future events.

In closing, there is no one more captivating and inspirational than Katie Dilse. Her message will truly sink into your heart and make you think about your life in a new and refreshing way. I highly recommend her for any event requiring a great keynote speaker.
